

How to request an item through LINK+

Go to <https://menlopark.bibliocommons.com> and do a search for the item you want.

If there are no results in the catalog, a link will appear that says Try your search in LINK+.

The screenshot shows the top navigation bar of the Menlo Park Bibliocommons website. The search bar contains the text "fizban's treasury of dragons". Below the search bar, the text "Keyword search: fizban's treasury of dragons" is displayed. A red arrow points to the message "Nothing found for fizban's treasury of dragons." Below this message, there is a link that says "Try your search in LINK+ Search >".

If there is a result but it's the wrong item or a different edition, there is a dropdown link on the right under Search other resources. In this example, we want Midnight Lace the movie, not the book.

The screenshot shows the search results page for "midnight lace". The title search is "midnight lace". The results show a book titled "Midnight Lace" by Kantor, MacKinlay. A red arrow points to the "Search other resources" dropdown menu, which is open and shows the option "Try your search in LINK+".

Clicking either of the new search links will take you to the LINK+ portal showing a list of available titles. Often you will see multiple listings for the same title. This is due to slight variances in the individual catalog listings among the 70+ different library systems. You can click through to explore the various listings and find an item that is available for requests. (LINK+ only fulfills requests if the item is immediately available on the shelf at the time you place the request in order to deliver on the 5-7 days fulfillment promise.)
